

siouxcityjournal.com News Sports Entertainment Lifestyles Opinion Obituaries More

Join the conversation Log In Register Subscribe

eekender

Sioux City's Best FREE Read

Advanced Search | Privacy | About Our Ads

Events Music Movies Sports/Rec Arts/Theater Community Bites Special Sections Contact Us

Breaking News

Frontier Airlines returning to Sioux City airport

Home / Weekender / Music

Musicians epitomize Iowa, stomp into Sioux City

King of The Tramps will take the stage for the first time in Sioux City at 8 p.m. Saturday (Feb. 22) at Vangarde Arts, 420 Jackson St.

February 20, 2014 12:00 am . By Kay Kemmet

If you want to hear what lowa sounds like, listen to The King Of The Tramps.

The Midwestern roots rockers yield a hearty blend of classic rock, old-school country, perhaps a dash of bluegrass and some gospel that seems to epitomize Central lowa's evolving sound.

As the only band making music in Auburn, lowa, a town nearly equidistant from Des Moines, Omaha and Sioux City, King Of The Tramps may have that claim to fame.

"There is nobody else making music around here, not original music," said lead singer Todd Partridge.

The King Of The Tramps will come to Sioux City for the first time this weekend. The band will take the stage at Vangarde Arts, 420 Jackson St., at 8 p.m. Saturday (Feb. 22).

(0) Comments

Competitive art show planned at Thursday in Sioux City Siouxland Artists Inc. will hold its annual Competitive Show Feb. 27-March 13. Read more

The details

King Of The Tramps

When: 8 p.m. Saturday (Feb. 22)

Where: Vangarde Arts, 420 Jackson St.

Ticket info: $10

Contact: 712-251-6432

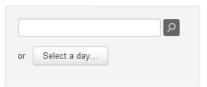

Connect with us

Latest issue

Event Calendar

Using chains flung against a worn corn feeder in the title track on their 2013 album "Wicked Mountain." The King